KEY CONFERENCE BENEFITS

"[This conference] is very well done, practical and always changing based on the times!"

"I like all of the real-life updates... The practical advice based on that is incredibly helpful."

"Very interesting and helpful."

"Great speakers and content. Very timely and practical; it's great."

"Well-organized and balanced breakout offerings."

Why This Conference Is Right for You –

Perhaps you're a data privacy and security law expert.

Maybe you're looking to become one.

Or, it could be that your role requires you to know enough to spot and flag these legal issues and refer them out.

Whichever category you fit, if you want to be a trusted legal advisor to your clients, it's critical that you stay current in this fast-paced practice area. At the Midwest Legal Conference on Privacy & Data Security, you choose from an array of breakout session topics to create a meaningful, custom experience. Because of its flexibility, this Conference is a go-to resource for timely, topical education for experts and non-experts alike.

REGISTER TODAY

1 Annual Updates Keep Your Legal Advice and Advocacy Current

Attending the 2020 Conference is the best way to make sure you are up-to-date on new laws, cases, and practice developments in data privacy and security law. The Conference features both plenary sessions and breakout sessions providing the updated information and insights you need to make sure your legal work is current and well-informed.

2 An Outstanding Conference Faculty Shares Its Expertise with You

A team of Conference faculty and planners spend hundreds of hours distilling information – new cases and rules, business trends, frequently asked client questions, and more – so you don't have to. At the Conference, you'll hear experts from private practice, in-house legal and privacy/security compliance roles, external consultants, and government – all there to share real-world advice and practice tips for tackling complex legal, technical and business issues.

3 Practical Takeaways Help You Get Better Results

The emphasis of the Conference is always to provide you with practical advice, tips and best practices. Those takeaways make your work easier and help you get better results for clients!

4 The In-Person Format Keeps You Connected

At the Conference, you'll enjoy the energy, the learning, the amenities – and spending time with colleagues and friends. You'll be part of a first-class legal education event – learning loads of new information, meeting new people, re-connecting with friends and colleagues, and having fun in the process.

5 Bonus Pre-Conference Webcast

NEW TOPIC &
FREE FOR ATTENDEES!

Want a quick overview/refresher to kick off your conference experience? This year we'll start things off the afternoon before the conference begins with a fast-paced overview via live webcast, "California Consumer Privacy Act 101 – A Fast-Paced Overview of the CCPA's Requirements and Enforcement Mechanisms."

The 2020 Data Privacy and Cybersecurity Legal Update

This is your “can’t miss” annual update from a legal expert on the forefront of privacy and cybersecurity, attorney Jamie Nafziger. Jamie will update you on the significant privacy and data security developments – both domestic and international – over the past year and key changes in the pipeline. Topics will include: GDPR regulatory guidance, data subject requests, and enforcement actions; U.S. federal privacy legislation; Privacy Shield developments; Schrems 2.0 case; Nevada’s new consumer privacy law; privacy legislation in India; biometrics legislation and cases; $170M COPPA settlement with YouTube; Facebook FTC fine; EU Court of Justice cookie decision; ePrivacy Regulation update; data localization developments; large security incidents and more. (The California Consumer Privacy Act will be discussed in the 10:00 a.m. session that follows.)

– Jamie N. Nafziger

10:00 – 11:00 a.m.

The CCPA from the Litigator’s Perspective – Understanding the Class Action and Other Litigation Risks

Experienced class action litigators – one plaintiff-side, one defense – identify and discuss the class action and other litigation risks surrounding the headline-grabbing California Consumer Privacy Act. What are the compliance missteps litigators are anticipating? What are the potential liabilities?

– John Albanese

– David F. McDowell

11:00 – 11:15 a.m.

BREAK

11:15 a.m. – 12:15 p.m.

BREAKOUT SESSION A

101

Data, Data, Data – With Data Everywhere, How Long Do You Need It and Why Should You Get Rid of It?

This session will cover the types of data, the regulations governing data retention obligations, as well as how you incent your clients and their officers and employees to “clean it out” – i.e., paper files, shared electronic files, backup media, portable electronic media and all the other storage areas for data. Presenters will cover data retention policies, implementing downstream obligations with contracted data recipients, legal obligations, and training considerations.

– Katheryn A. Andresen & Kaitlin F. Eisler

FOUNDATIONS

102

CCPA Clones Are on the Way

(Repeated at session #302)

California was the first state to pass a data breach notification statute which are now in place in all 50 states. California is once again the vanguard when it comes to passing laws creating enhanced data privacy rights for individuals. Copycat California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) legislation has been introduced in at least a dozen other states with state legislative efforts underway to pass new more stringent GDPR type data privacy laws. This session will consider other state legislative efforts in data privacy, how they compare to the CCPA and GDPR, and what practical steps a business can take to comply with such multiple local and global data privacy laws.

– Michael R. Cohen

CCPA & OTHER STATE LAW

103

Privacy/Security Litigation Update – What the Big Developments in 2019 Mean in 2020 and Beyond

This session will focus on the state of the law in data breach, data privacy, and data security cases, including claims arising under federal consumer protection statutes and under state law. Presenters will specifically provide plaintiff and defense perspectives on recent developments in: data privacy and data security litigation; potential for data breach class actions; recent high-profile settlements; and more.

– Joe Hashmall & Jeffrey P. Justman

MORE NEW DEVELOPMENTS

12:15 – 1:15 p.m.

LUNCH (Consider making plans to join a fellow attendee!)

1:15 – 2:15 p.m.

BREAKOUT SESSION B

201

Implementing Privacy and Security Programs – Tools for Building New Programs and Refining Existing Ones

Even if companies didn't have to worry about four-letter words (GDPR, CCPA), they still need privacy and security programs. Whether your client is big or small, Fortune 100 or startup, local or global, having privacy and security program operations in place is not optional. This session will provide attendees with tools to build new programs or refine or supplement existing ones — including sample policies and procedures, templates, and reference materials.

– Kerry Childe

202

10 Practical CCPA Compliance Tips for In-House Counsel

Get 10 can't-miss, practical insights on CCPA compliance from an in-house counsel with past experience as an FTC Attorney in that agency's Division of Privacy and Identity Protection. The insights range from implementation to training to audits and more – and you'll leave the session with ideas to refine and improve your clients' CCPA compliance effectiveness.

– Maggie Lassack

203

Dysregulating the Media: How the Digital Shift via Facebook, Amazon, Netflix, and Other Platforms Has Outpaced Regulatory Authority – and Creates Significant Privacy and Data Security Concerns

Netflix, Amazon, YouTube, and Apple have been joined by Disney+, Twitch, CBS All Access, Facebook and others to move all content out of the radio spectrum, ending a century of FCC regulation. As the FCC, FTC, FEC, and various regulators struggle, a new digital divide has emerged. The presentation will explore the economic, social and legal issues, including significant privacy, data security, advertising, and antitrust tensions.

– Jon M. Garon

2:15 – 2:30 p.m.

BREAK

2:30 – 3:30 p.m.

BREAKOUT SESSION C

301

Data Breach – Navigating the Technical, Strategic and Legal Issues

When companies lose laptops, or backup tapes, or suffer a computer intrusion on systems containing personal information regarding customers or users, they trigger notification duties under a patchwork of statutes. This session describes how companies should navigate the technical, strategic, and legal issues involved in complying with these statutes. In addition, the presentation will provide practice tips on what immediate steps to take when a data breach occurs.

– Brent Bidjou

302

CCPA Clones Are on the Way

(Repeat of session #102)

California was the first state to pass a data breach notification statute which are now in place in all 50 states. California is once again the vanguard when it comes to passing laws creating enhanced data privacy rights for individuals. Copycat California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) legislation has been introduced in at least a dozen other states with state legislative efforts underway to pass new more stringent GDPR type data privacy laws. This session will consider other state legislative efforts in data privacy, how they compare to the CCPA and GDPR, and what practical steps a business can take to comply with such multiple local and global data privacy laws.

– Michael R. Cohen

303

Government Access to Information: Balancing Individual Rights and the Common Good

Technological innovation has outpaced our privacy protections. As a result, our digital footprint can be tracked by the government and corporations in ways that were once unthinkable. This digital footprint is constantly growing, containing more and more data about the most intimate aspects of our lives, including communications, locations, search and purchase history, even physical health and our bodies – all readily available data. This session will explore the tensions that arise between privacy rights and the legitimate need for access to information or surveillance, and offer guidance on how to anticipate issues and advise clients when navigating the tricky waters of privacy and security. You'll also learn about the ACLU's work at the intersection of speech, privacy, and technology to ensure that civil liberties are protected in the digital age.

– John B. Gordon

BREAKOUT SESSION F

601

Making Best Practice Common Practice: The CIS Critical Security Controls

When it comes to tackling privacy and data security challenges, many organizations are overwhelmed by the “fog of more” – ever increasing regulations, guidance, warnings, advice, trainings, certification, etc. – to say nothing of the flood of attacks that enterprises face every day. This session will show how a broad community comes together to understand threats, translate them into security control frameworks, and sustain an ecosystem of volunteers, tools, vendors, working aids, and information to help us all improve our cybersecurity and find clarity through the fog. Finally, we’ll describe the implications for the emerging ecosystem of public policy, “best practices”, “reasonable security”, and risk decision-making activities that are reshaping the cyber world.

– Tony Sager

A Checklist Approach to Privacy and Data Security Issues in M&A

Unreported data breaches and other privacy and data security concerns have disrupted several major M&A deals in recent years. This session will walk through, point-by-point, the questions and process that an organization might undertake as part of due diligence in a transaction to ensure enough time and thoroughness are given to evaluating the target company’s privacy and data security standards and history.

– Kellie Johnson

603

Targeting the C-Suite: Business Email Compromises – Prevention, Identification, and Response

Business Email Compromises (BECs) remain a top cybersecurity threat for organizations. Come learn about the various forms BECs take and how they are increasingly targeting the C-suite. This session will focus on strategies for preventing and identifying BECs, as well as responding if and when your organization is the victim of a BEC. We will also discuss liability, risk of loss, and potential legal claims arising out of BECs.

– Sten-Erik Hoidal

2:15 – 2:30 p.m.

BREAK

2:30 – 3:30 p.m.

BREAKOUT SESSION G

701

Cyber Security – How Data Privacy, Security Policies, and Preventive Services Can Protect the Small Business

This session will provide practical insights for small businesses to understand and prioritize their risks, along with best practices to address them in the current privacy and cyber arenas. The risks are real and can have a significant business impact; this session will help you advise clients in allocating resources and finding accessible solutions that efficiently and effectively help businesses minimize these risks.

– Heidi J.K. Fessler & Michael Kennedy

702

Taking the Cloud Out of the Cloud: 15 FAQs and Their Answers

Common questions clients ask regarding cloud agreements and related issues:

- What are the legal considerations for moving to the cloud?
- What are the data security risks for cloud data?
- Are there specific contract terms to negotiate or avoid?
- How can you protect confidential information and/or trade secrets on the cloud?
- How does a client collect information from a cloud location for an investigation or discovery in litigation?
- What steps does my client need to take to migrate data to/from a cloud provider?
- And more

– Mathea K.E. Bulander & Jon Farnsworth

703

Is This Covered?: The 10 Most Important Things to Understand About Your Cyber-Insurance Policy

Cyber insurance is new to many organizations. This session will explain some of the features of cyber insurance and describe some of its challenges. We will explore the claim process and discuss what losses are typically covered and not covered.

– Mario Paez & Jonathan H. Stechmann

3:30 – 3:45 p.m.

BREAK

3:45 – 4:45 p.m.

CONCLUDING PLENARY

Humans: “Hardening” Organizations’ Top Attack Vector

What’s the most vulnerable part of all security controls? People. With smart design, an organization can influence its user base to act as safeguards rather than attack vectors. This session will deliver examples of proactive investment in driving behaviors that make a difference – helping your client create or improve a program that actually reduces human risks. You’ll also hear how these experienced security-training professionals engage with the legal and compliance departments to deliver the best results.
