Hook, Line, and Stinker: Phishing, AI, Deepfakes and Other Cybersecurity Traps for Lawyers – Part I

Cybersecurity threats targeting attorneys have evolved beyond simple password breaches. Professional legal educator Stuart Teicher examines how deepfake impersonations, sophisticated phishing schemes, and metaverse vulnerabilities create specific ethics violations under the Rules of Professional Conduct. Learning objectives include:

- Exploring the intersection between cybersecurity, deepfakes, phishing, and supervision (Rule 5.3).
- Understanding the danger of facial recognition, the cybersecurity issue of imposters, and the need for competence (Rule 1.1).
- Learning how the increased prevalence of more casual communication styles in the practice affects our ability to satisfy Rule 1.4 (Communication) and increases cybersecurity risks.
- An explanation of the metaverse, and a discussion about how spatial audio could create confidentiality problems (Rule 1.6).
- A few issues about generative AI, including the transparency (Rule 2.1), and the reason for the never-ending issue of hallucinations.

Harmony in Justice: Using Classic R&B to Address Bias and Diversity in the Legal Profession

Discover how the powerful messages from Motown’s music can help lawyers confront implicit and explicit bias and disparities within the legal profession. “Harmony in Justice” ties iconic R&B songs to the essential principles of equity and inclusion. This program encourages self-reflection and practical strategies for promoting diversity and inclusion, challenging both individual and institutional biases. We’ll explore how these songs’ themes of empowerment, justice, and social change parallel the work needed to achieve true equity in the legal profession.

What the Space Race Teaches About Diversity and Inclusion in the Law

NASA’s race to the moon succeeded because brilliant minds were finally welcomed into the room. Professional legal educator, Stuart Teicher, examines how the space program’s evolution from segregation to integration—including the experiences depicted in Hidden Figures—demonstrates that fostering genuine belonging strengthens teams and outcomes. The program explores how building authentic professional relationships across differences improves client service, enhances decision-making, and creates more effective legal organizations. When law firms embrace inclusion the way NASA eventually did, everyone reaches higher.

Reviews of Stuart Teicher’s Past Minnesota CLE Presentations

“He is very engaging, knowledgeable, and provides an excellent program.

I really like his style of presenting. I found myself laughing a few times – which I did not think would happen in an ethics CLE.

Nice energy for these topics, best ethics and mental health presentations I have seen.

Stuart is very entertaining and is able to hold your attention while delivering important content.”
